IT'S GAME DAY—IS YOUR FOREMAN QB READY?

It's game day, your opponent is already on the field, and you call into the locker room for your foreman quarterback to take the field. Is he ready? Does he understand his role? Does he have the same game plan as you? Does he understand the scouting report on the opposition, and what it will take to win in this game? Is he confident and knowledgeable enough of the game plan to know when to stick with the plan, and when to audible?

The project foreman needs to be much more than just a talented journeyman who knows how to "go fast." The foreman is the first line of management in the company, and must become the quarterback by learning more than just the technical trade skills required to install the work.

Like a quarterback, he must have a carefully crafted and practiced game plan (or else it's sandlot football), he must be able to execute the plan, he must be able to adjust the plan when teammates stumble or show less talent, he must provide accurate feedback to the coaches on the bench, and he must AT ALL TIMES keep his eyes on the goal of winning the game.

That's what this program is about ...

Back when I was a foreman, I saw Kirk Alter teach the PHCC seminar called "Foreman as Field Leader". Thanks to that session, I completely changed how I handled my field guys. It really helped me to focus on keeping the workforce productive. It was at that point that my career moved to the next level.
